

cigar aficionado NEWS WATCH

May 29, 2012

Crowned Heads Finalizes Blend on Headley Grange

Crowned Heads LLC, the company behind the Four Kicks brand, has settled on a final blend for its new release, called Headley Grange. The cigars are considerably stronger than Four Kicks. Combining an Ecuador Sumatra wrapper with a core of Nicaraguan filler and binder tobaccos, the Headley Grange Estupendos (5 1/2 by 52) will be released on August 12. A pre-release sample proved bold and heady, with considerable power. The cigars are rolled in the Dominican Republic by Ernesto Perez-Carrillo, and were inspired by the song "When the Levee Breaks," by Led Zeppelin. The three other sizes in the brand won't go on sale until 2013.
